

START YOUR OWNER OPERATOR CAREER

Want to become an Owner Operator?

This document will outline some valuable information about becoming an owner operator.

HOW TO TRANSITION

The steps below outline the process of how to transition to becoming an Owner Operator.

1 Speak to your terminal manager

The first step is to speak to your terminal manager and let them know you are interested in making the switch.

2 Invest in startup costs

It is important to be aware of the upfront costs that come with being an Owner Operator. As an Owner Operator, you will:

- a. Apply for financing or a loan through a bank of your choice.
- b. Ensure you have money set aside for gas and maintenance costs.

3 Get a truck inspection

Trimac needs to perform a truck inspection to ensure that your truck will be suitable for the job. This may require equipment to be installed.

4 Take on more responsibility

While stepping into an Owner Operator role gives you more freedom, it also has more responsibilities. Some additional responsibilities may include:

- a. Manage your finances more closely.
- b. Set time aside to take your truck in for preventative maintenance appointments.
- c. Learn how to do basic maintenance yourself to save on shop costs.

PERKS & BENEFITS

With the transition to being an Owner Operator comes many benefits. Some perks of the role includes:

We pay by direct deposit. Canadian drivers are paid bi-weekly, and those in the US are paid weekly.

Owner Operators can hire drivers to drive your trucks for you (potential to start your own business).

Discounts/perks at National Tank Services shops.

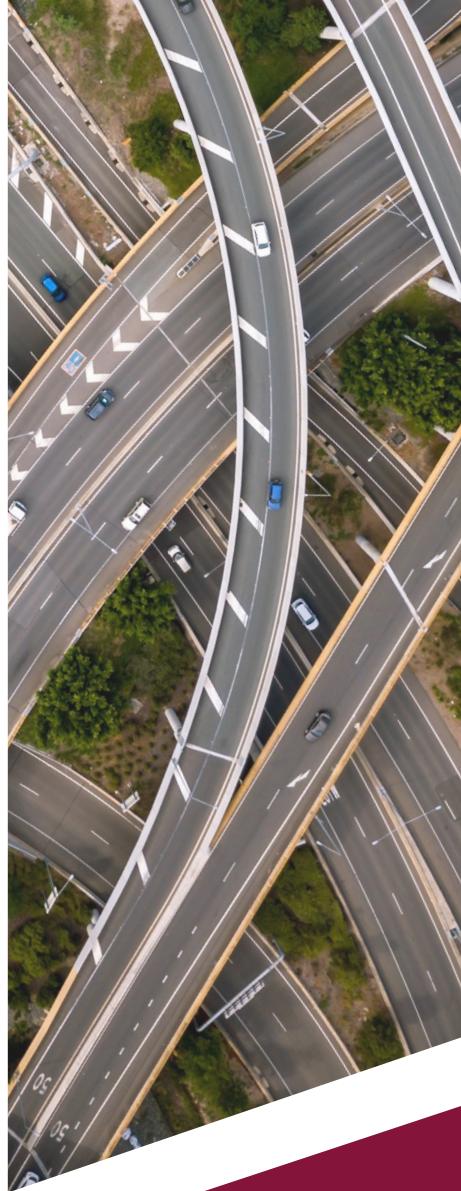

Trimac provides fuel cards for Owner Operators.

Be your own boss and can take vacation days whenever you want.

Easy to move locations as Trimac has multiple branches.
